Ideas for Sharing Books with Your Child
(Add your own, too!)

- Show your child the front of the book (the beginning) and the back of the book (the end).
- With your child, look at the cover of the book and ask him what he thinks the story will be about.
- Run your finger under the print as you read the story.
- From time to time, ask your child a question about the story or pictures.
- While reading, ask your child what he thinks might happen next.
- Ask your child to tell you the name of his favorite character in the story.
- Together with your child, make up a new ending to the story.
- After reading a story to your child several times, let her "read" the story to you by looking at the pictures.
